

Referring to the repeated injuries and usurpations inflicted upon them by the King of England, Jefferson wrote:

He has erected a multitude of new offices, and sent hither swarms of officers to harass our people and eat out their substance.

Sadly and outrageously, Mr. Speaker, this describes the way many Americans feel about the enormous size, intrusiveness and cost of Government today.

That is why I am introducing a sense-of-the-Congress resolution today to highlight cost of Government day, which this year is coincidentally 1 day before Independence Day. That is right, Mr. Speaker, according to Americans for Tax Reform, from January 1 through July 3 this year, Americans are working to pay for Government spending at all levels plus the cost of regulations.

One hundred eighty-four days to pay for Government and regulations and 181 days to pay for the things they and their families really need. This situation, my colleagues, has gotten ridiculous. Maybe it is time for a new Declaration of Independence, Mr. Speaker.

GENERAL MOTORS CLOSING MORE U.S. AUTO PLANTS AND MOVING JOBS OVERSEAS

(Mr. TRAFICANT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. TRAFICANT. Mr. Speaker, General Motors has closed another auto plant in America, this time Tarrytown, NY. 2,100 American workers, gonesville.

In addition, General Motors announced it will close another seven factories in America in the next several years.

Now, if that is not enough to grease your slip clutch, General Motors announced it is building a billion-dollar factory in Thailand and a massive new plant in Mexico, and because the Mexican workers are so poor, they will help build the Mexican workers new homes. Unbelievable. Think about it. American workers losing their homes, General Motors building homes for Mexican workers, averaging 70 cents an hour.

Beam me up, Mr. Speaker. For years I thought the Three Stooges ran our economic policy. Today I suspect Dr. Jack Kevorkian. This is no program.

Before the day is over, we will approve most-favored-nation trade status for a country that pays 17 cents an hour wages.

I yield back any jobs left.

TRIBUTE TO HON. BILL EMERSON OF MISSOURI

(Mr. LAHOOD asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. LAHOOD. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to say that I regret very much that I was not able to be on the floor when a number of Members rose to pay tribute to Bill Emerson, and I urge all Members today, as we have a very spirited debate, to keep in our thoughts and prayers Bill Emerson and the work that he did on behalf of his constituents. As we meet here at this hour, there is a service being conducted for him in Cape Girardeau, MO, and I urge all Members to remember Bill and in the days and months ahead to remember Jo Ann Emerson and Bill Emerson's family.

MUZZLING DEBATE ON UNITED STATES-CHINA TRADE RELATIONS

(Ms. KAPTUR asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. KAPTUR. Mr. Speaker, what a travesty. Last Tuesday in the dead of night, with Members of this House given no voice and no notice, the House Rules Committee, at the behest of Speaker GINGRICH, ramrodded a rule to restrict debate on the critical issue of United States-China trade relations. Then last night, after 1 a.m., the restrictive rule was voice-voted by a deal struck by the proponents to muzzle debate today. Members were not recorded on that key rule vote. Now today the brief debate on whether Congress will actually grant Most Favored Nation trade status to China for the first time in a straight up or down vote in this Chamber will occur and the debate itself while most Members are at Bill Emerson's funeral today. What an outrage.

Commerce with a fascist state will not yield liberty. Our 250-million-person market cannot sustain these gaping trade deficits growing every year with a nation of 1 billion 250 million people. Just the $40 billion trade deficit this year means another 800,000 lost jobs in America.

EXHIBIT HONORING MARK TWAIN

(Mr. BARR of Georgia asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, for 75 days this summer the people of Cobb County, GA, and neighboring communities will have a unique opportunity to view an exhibit featuring original materials from America's great writer and humorist: Mark Twain.

The exhibit, known as, "Mark Twain: An American Voice to the World," will be on display in Kennesaw State University's Horace Sturgis Library, and will feature original manuscripts, artifacts, first editions, and other items from this great American author.

The exhibition has been praised as "The most richly varied and representative display of original materials relating to the life and works of Mark Twain ever assembled for public exhibition," by Robert Pack Browning, director of the Mark Twain papers at the University of California, Berkeley.

I would like to congratulate Kennesaw State University president Betty L. Siegel, library director Robert B. Williams, and his staff. I would also like to thank the numerous institutions and collectors who participated in the exhibition. My thanks goes also to my colleagues, Speaker GINGRICH, and Fifth District Congressman JOHN LEWIS, and to Fred Bentley, Sr., for making this project a reality for the people of Georgia.

THE MANAGED CARE BILL OF RIGHTS OF 1996

(Ms. VELÁZQUEZ asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks and include extraneous material.)

Ms. VELÁZQUEZ. Mr. Speaker, I rise before the Members to introduce a crucial piece of legislation that is long overdue, the managed care bill of rights of 1996.

Today I introduce this legislation in response to a repulsive and dangerous trend that is taking place. Across this country, Americans are joining managed care plans in order to cut costs. However, while ultra-wealthy HMO's are making multibillion-dollar profits, working-class families are paying for these profits with their health and, in some cases, their lives.

Health care companies should make people healthier, not sicker, yet HMO patients are routinely denied access to specialists and refused compensation for emergency room visits. My legislation will put an end to these cruel policies. I urge my colleagues to cosponsor this legislation and work toward safeguarding every American's access to quality health care.

SUPPORT THE WORKING FAMILIES FLEXIBILITY ACT

(Mr. BALLENGER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. BALLENGER. Mr. Speaker, once again, the Clinton administration has stolen yet another Republican idea and called it their own. After originally opposing legislation that would let hard-working Americans spend more time with their families, the President has chosen to co-opt this popular idea. This is a desperate action by a desperate man in a political year.

When a Republican bill containing comp time, the Working Families Flexibility Act, was first mentioned as the minimum-wage legislative vehicle, the President's Chief of Staff, Leon Panetta, called it a poison pill and President Clinton waved his veto pen at it. But now after the Republicans have built support for this legislation, the President ran down to Nashville this past weekend to announce his own version of a comp time bill.
